

Cavernomas

Cavernomas are venous malformations; they often have a round mulberry-like appearance and can also hemorrhage. They cannot be embolized or irradiated; if possible, they should be completely removed. The difficulty of the operation depends on the location of the cavernoma. With special surgical accesses, it is possible to surgically remove even cavernomas in the brainstem or midbrain.